Rooms of E&O

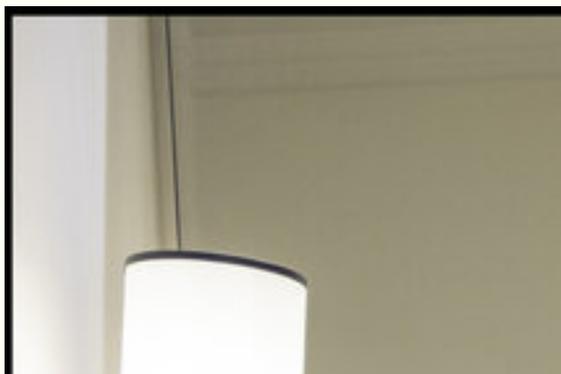

All the rooms at the hotel were suites in one form or another. The rooms are located on two separate tower - the older Heritage Wing and the newer Victory Wing. Both were as lavish, but we had always preferred the old site, built back in the 1800s.

For this stay, Anita and I stayed at the ground terrace level, with our own garden outside, facing the sea. Located right next to the swimming pool, I could just walk out of the room into the garden and enjoy the sea breeze.

Irfan and Idlan, on the other end, stayed on the first floor, in a room facing the sea, without a balcony. They preferred their separate area, with two separate beds. In terms of floor space, theirs were bigger than our room on the ground floor.

While waiting for the boys' room to be ready, we were allowed into another suite. We declined this one because it was facing the city. All the rooms were classically decorated with marble floorings in the bathrooms, antique furniture and ample space. The wifi was fast and free. It had all the major TV channels. And the bathtubs were just amazing ...
